"THE POSTMAN WHO ASKED TO WORK THE SLUMS"

Most people thought postman Tibor Szoke was crazy when he deliberately asked for the most problematic district in Pecs, one of the biggest cities in southern Hungary. It is an area where people, mostly Roma, live in abject poverty. But Tibor says it is divine luck that the task found him. He passes out small notes of wisdom that he writes along with the mail and says it is his way of making the world a better place.
